

STATE OF VERMONT

SUPERIOR COURT
Washington Unit

CIVIL DIVISION
No. 22-CV-3730

MANETIRONY CLERVRAIN, et al.,
Plaintiffs,

v.

STATE OF VERMONT,
Defendant.

ENTRY

On October 27, 2022, the court ordered Plaintiff's initial filings stricken from the record due to extraordinary incomprehensibility, granting leave to file, within 14 days, an amended pleading with comprehensibility minimally sufficient for the court to process the filing or this case would be dismissed. On November 6, Plaintiff filed a similarly incomprehensible, 49-page filing. The first sentence is as follows:

If this court Holding that a)-[Emergency Extension] is a recoverable contract damage when the contract concerns matters against the defendants b)-[Criminal Enterprise], or c)-[Conference Extension], that must be c)-[Granted], it is a 1)-[National Call] just like calling the police, if they failed to fallow the laws, which means they are liable for all claims, and 2)-[Unlimited Damages] must be imposed. or all evidence must be upload to Pacer before Schedule any further conference, or if the Situation is d)-[Very Complex], or which the inventor is questioning the defendants performance, within the the content additional submissions filed across the country, i)-[Exhibit III], which we said that they are voluminous for mailing without them consider the constitutional violations.

It does not become more comprehensible thereafter.

If the November 6 document is intended to be the amended pleading permitted by the October 27 order, it fails to comply with the minimal comprehensibility requirement of that order.

Though there is no comprehensible request for an extension of time, if by use of the word "extension," such a request may have been intended, that request is denied. There is no asserted good cause for any such extension. See V.R.C.P. 6(b)(1).

The November 6 document is stricken from the record for the same reasons as explained in the October 27 order.

SO ORDERED this 7th day of November, 2022.
